

Industrial heating blankets digital 120°C

An industrial heating blanket/cuff heats surfaces and solids in an energy efficient and controllable way. Heating blankets are used, among others, in the marine industry for heating and curing GRP-hulls, aviation industry for heating and curing composite material, in windmill industry for repairing and production of rotor blades and for curing epoxy.

IHPs heating blankets are available in standard range and customized manufactured according to customer specifications. This model has a surface layer of silicone impregnated fabric that is easy to handle and clean. Heating blankets can be mounted side by side to cover a bigger area and is available for both inside and outside use.

The heating blankets are supplied as standard with a digital controller, adjustable between 0 and 120°C, which also contains extra functionality such as timer and ramping function.

Note that the heating blanket may not overlap itself.
